WIDE+ call for young volunteers to promote feminist economic justice

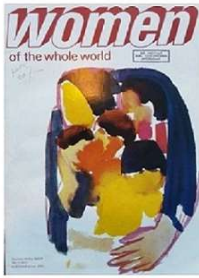

WIDE+ has a new volunteering project that youth (18 - 30 years old) can join. This project allows them to train and learn more about feminism, advocacy and campaigning. It will enable them to work together with volunteers from across Europe and in the second part of the project, they will also collaborate with volunteers from Palestine and Morocco. Please share this call within your networks.

For more information on the call for volunteers, click here.

ELIZABETH JIMÉNEZ-YÁÑEZ, LATIN AMERICAN WOMEN'S RIGHTS SERVICE,
(UK)

MARILYN THOMSON, LATIN
AMERICAN BUREAU, (UK)

Thursday, 26 January
5PM-7PM CET

WIDE+ and Latin American Bureau \(LAB\) will host an online discussion about gender-based violence (GBV) against migrant women in Europe, reflecting on the ways migrant women resist this violence and the European legal and policy frameworks around GBV.

While data is not easily available, existing research shows that migrant women are disproportionately affected by GBV. In this webinar we will ask why there is such an excessive representation of migrant women in the figures of gender-based violence, and why there is less police and judicial protection for migrant women.

WIDE+ is seeking resources about (feminist) online campaigning

As part of our ongoing CB4VOL project, the secretariat is putting together an online campaigning curriculum to provide capacity-building for youth volunteers in this area. If you have resources to do with campaigning (online or offline), advocacy, online tools, etc, especially with a feminist lens, and would be interested to share them with us, please do email Nurhidayah Hassan: hassan@wideplus.org.

Upcoming webinar by WIMN: The climate crisis and its impact on women's livelihoods, 19 January, 8am CET

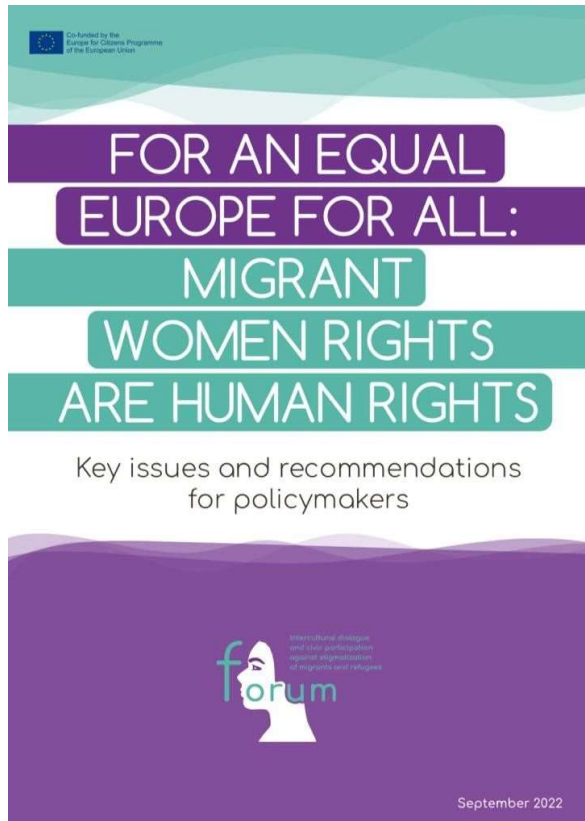

The Women in Migration Network (WIMN), together with its co-sponsors and allies, is holding this event to build knowledge on the connection between migration and climate change -- bringing a feminist perspective -- and creating a collective advocacy platform from the bottom up.

The event is focusing in the Arab, West Asia and Asia Pacific regions and will explore how climate change and extreme weather events impact women's livelihoods. Women leaders will share their knowledge and experiences in organizing and responding to these impacts, including displacement and migration. Register here for the webinar.
